Evaluation of new technologies for commercial Lidar data
Minsu Kim
SGT Contractor to USGS
This research will look at new lidar data acquisition technologies based on single photon detection that will be seen in the commercial lidar industry in the near future. An overview of these two technologies will be presented followed by an analysis of data collected by these two systems, in comparison to data collected from conventional lidar data and ground control points.